

The Water

There's a sense of comfort in the water.

My body glides through as if it remembers me,
as if I belong.

It's funny because I never want to get in the water,
but once I find myself within...
I can never pull myself back out.

This isn't about the water.