

resolutions under a new moon events from november suffocate this year, fog whatever memories had permeated from this genesis. so now the goal is recover, and turn january 1st into the birth of a new self, not a continuation of what wasn't let go the month before, what couldn't be let go the few days prior.

next year is all about avoiding mercury's retrograde, staying out of tune with the regressive nature of a planet's orbit, holding true to new self image. this year i am leaving behind this washing machine, shotgun barrel, kitchen blender, cyclic nature. this year i am finding my Resolutions in the advent of myself before knowing you. this year i'm finding redefinition; see how the sky is still blue, and venus hangs above the mountain horizon, and a new moon dawns the First: i am finding reasons to believe this is not all i will ever be.